

influenced my decision. And it kind of encouraged me to want to actually go into

TTUHSC SNMA president Destiny Ugwa said SNMA is dedicated to ensuring medical education and health care are culturally sensitive to the needs of diverse populations, and to increasing the number of students of color entering and completing medical school.

She said she hopes all the high school students involved in the minicamp take away the message that they can pursue a career in medicine anybody. And you know, the sky's the limit, Ugwa said.